

The Elizabeth Hunter™ Insights into the Card Carrying 1004 Inspirational

When I'm alone, I can often find some way to entertain myself and what that actually is can range from just being silly to doing something really productive. It's, more often than not, something creative. This could be art, music, writing, playing a game or just making one up. It can feel rather easy to do this if I feel single.

I am considered by some as being eccentric and, while others really enjoy being around that part of me, others can become easily bored or completely intolerant of this.

I find people usually notice me more quickly and they also pick up on my absence. The positive side is that it's easy to make friends or at least have several acquaintances. The negative side is that I change my routine quite often and people may think I'm unwell or something is really wrong. The other downside is that on the nights where I push myself to go out or engage in a conversation with someone, they'll often expect me to be the same 'entertaining' way I was before. So, in this case, I can become a victim of my own extroversion.

I tend to be a curious creature, so I poke around a lot and can possibly get into a lot of trouble doing so. I can easily upset someone without realizing it until it's too late. I can also cause serious injury to myself on the basis that "curiosity killed the Inspirational.

I don't always follow the 'rules' and this can cause problems at work, home or just where ever they are at the present moment. There can be a positive side of this and that's when others recognize something is wrong and feel the need to change it.

I am incredibly unusual in my thinking and problem-solving skills. I'm an out of the box style thinker and come up with some pretty unorthodox solutions. I think my ability to make sense out of abstract concepts sets me apart from other groups.

I am usually considered egotistical at times even when that is not my intent. Something as a simple joke or satirical remark could be taken completely out of context and considered to be offensive. I'm confident in what I do and how I do it. If I don't know, I'm confident enough in my ability to learn to figure it out. My confidence attracts attention, but that attention could easily be unwanted at that time for whatever reason so once again, I am my own victim.

On a date, I can be funny and talkative but also quiet and sit listening to the other person. In listening and really paying attention to the conversation, I can completely get the essence of things almost instantly not just by listening to the words being said, but by a ton of other factors. This makes some people often walk away feeling like they've had some deep personal moment in which the Inspirational just completely 'got' them and feel quite special afterwards.

I have a difficult time dealing with forms or any type of paper work because the creative part of my head is temporarily shut down and I have to go to boring mode and our trouble with patience in these matters reveals itself.

Composed from scanning the Blogosphere. It is not possible to allocate attributions to this research as Elizabeth Hunter™ is of the view that most participants in blogs contribute on line under some sort of alias, pen name or other form of obfuscation.

Latest update: April 21, 2019